

When we were approached with Saviors of Kimeria we immediately knew we wanted to be part of it.
The game is beautifully designed and fun, but what we loved the most was how it could help our kids to learn the names of the animals of their home island in both Papiamento and English.
We believe the first step to love something is getting to know it, and we want to help our younger generations to really love Bonaire and its animals, so here we are.
Bonaire may be a small island but it is full of big dreamers, and we want our kids to keep dreaming big, and to recognize and cherish the natural blessings that we have been given as Bonerians.

The pictures of the parrot, flamingo and hummingbird were donated by Elly Albers, leader of the Bonaire Wild Bird Rehab Initiative, which provides a home for the island's sick or injured birds. You can find them (and help) visiting <https://www.mangrovecenter.com/bonaire-wild-bird-rehab/>

Diana Sint Jango and Desiree Croes at Stinapa helped us get the correct names of the animals in Papiamentu, and gave us amazing feedback on the game.

Mabel Nava at Sea Turtle Conservation of Bonaire helped us making sure we had the correct specie name in the Green Turtle Card and offered photos. You can follow their amazing labor at <http://www.bonaireturtles.org/wp/>

The family De Salvo (George, Laura and Donna), gave us generous coverage in their newspaper, "The Reporter", helping us to reach a lot of people in Bonaire. You can find them at <http://bonairereporter.com/>

Special thanks to Alvin Obersi and Rodger Albertus at Obersi Group of Companies. Their early support was key to have this first run of the game done. Also to Yolanda Anthony (Tante) for translating parts of the text to Papiamento.

We were fortunate enough to count with another sponsor that asked to remain anonymous. They were the first ones to sponsor us, and they have helped us many times before. They are a blessing that the sea brought to us.

Finally also had the help of the best and cutest game testers: my little daughters Agata and Amanda and their friends Ava, Sophia and Kayra. Seeing them having fun with the game helped me keep on believing in the game.
